PLAN TO DODGE SHOWDOWN ON CONTROVERSY

U. S. Expected to Reject 3rd German Protest Note on Ship Seizures.

REQUISITION BILL DUE

Isolationists Insist F.D.R. Forbidden by Constitution To Order Convoying.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — Senate non-interventionists indicated today they may change their strategy and dodge a showdown on the convoy issue when President Roosevelt's bill for the requisitioning of immobilized foreign ships reaches the floor next week.

Word came from reliable diplomatic officials that the United States would reject the third German protest against this government's seizure of two Nazi cargo vessels in American ports. The new German note contended that the American shipping shortage resulted from its British aid policy and did not warrant emergency seizure of foreign vessels.

There was a sensational report in capitol corridors that Mr. Roosevelt might make a personal appearance before a joint session of congress to discuss the convoy question. Responsible leaders, however, discounted this report, saying it was more likely the president would discuss the subject in his address Wednesday before the Pan American Union.

The convoy issue in the senate has been building up ever since Sen. Charles W. Tobey (R., N. H.) announced he would offer his anti-convoy resolution—rejected by the senate foreign relations committee—as an amendment to the ship requisitioning bill when it comes up next week.

Some non-interventionists said they understood Tobey had decided against this and instead would attempt to put the senate on record by moving to discharge the foreign relations committee from further consideration of his resolution. Some members it was

Bombers Create Scenes Like This In Liverpool

Bombed-out families such as this one are becoming common sights in Liverpool as German airmen continue dumping countless tons of explosives on the English seaport city. According to the British caption, this picture shows Mrs. Sarah Mason 68, and her four grandchildren as they await help from the local authorities. A demolition squad (background) is seen preparing to pull down the remains of their bombed home.

British Renew Heavy Bombing Of Nazi Cities

Dutch Squadrons Join Assault From Norway to France; Germans Thought Preparing for Mass Daylight Raids Over English Isles.

(By International News Service)

LONDON—Dog-fights on a grand scale raged over the English channel today as the German Luftwaffe sought openings for mass daylight raids in retaliation for powerful Allied blows from Norway to France.

Flying American-built Hudson bombers, Dutch naval-air squadrons carried out their first offensive during the night, cooperating with the RAF in assaults on Kristiansand and Mandal on the southern tip of Norway.

Dutch participation in the widespread aerial offensive was in grim observance of the first anniversary of Germany's invasion of The Netherlands.

Britain's air fleet concentrated on the sister industrial and commercial cities of Mannheim and Ludwigshafen on the Rhine, and for the second successive night bombed Berlin.

Huge fires were started in the dock and industrial areas of Mannheim and Ludwigshafen the air ministry said.

The American Hudson bombers which struck across the North Sea with Dutch pilots at the controls had been presented by Hollanders living overseas—most of them in the United States.

After bombing German airports and dockyards at Kristiansand and landing fields at Mandal, the squadron leader of the Dutch unit said:

"We waited a long time to switch from convoying to the offensive."

Other pilots said that their objectives in southern Norway were hit repeatedly through the hours of darkness, and large fires were started.

Today numerous dog-fights recalling the big air battles of last autumn raged over the channel, and the size of Nazi daylight attacks in the last few days led to the belief that the Germans are planning to resume huge day raids.

(Editor's Note: An official Berlin announcement said RAF bombers attacked districts in northern, western and southwestern Germany during the night, apparently concentrating on the southwest with an assault on a large city where "it must be feared that a number of civilians were killed and injured.")

The Berlin communique also said that RAF planes reached Berlin, dropping incendiaries and high explosives on a residential district where other civilians were killed and injured.

The new RAF raids followed up the stunning attacks of the previous night, which saw a record number of long-distance British bombers pouring tons of explosives and incendiaries on Hamburg, Bremen, Berlin and Emden.

Events of the past few nights have indicated a vast increase in the strength of the British attacks on German territory, and observers in London expressed belief these raids will be continued incessantly with increasing strength.

The RAF appears to be determined to avenge the hammering that German night raiders have meted out to London, Plymouth, Liverpool, Hull and many other British ports and manufacturing cities.

While the British bombers pounded the Reich, German planes attacked various sectors of Brit-

Kills His Mother as 'Mother's Day Gift'

Clevelander Bludgeons Parent So She Can Be 'Happy With Her Ma and Pa' Then Hangs Self In Basement.

(By United Press)

CLEVELAND—A scrawled note was found stuffed in a pocket of Edward Svoboda, 36, after he bludgeoned his mother, Anna, 62, to death and then killed himself by hanging in their home, two days before Mother's day.

The note said:

"I've tried six times to kill Ma but I can't do it. She's lying on the couch sleeping. Every time I get up she gets up, too. Then I sit down and wait again. Mother always said she wanted to die in her sleep. I hope God gives me the power to do it. On Mother's day my Ma will be happy with her Ma and Pa—but me?"

The bodies of the son and his mother were discovered shortly after 6 p. m. yesterday by James Svoboda, 65, the father and husband, when he returned from work.

Mrs. Svoboda was lying in her bedroom, her head crushed by blows from a six-pound sledge hammer found nearby. Lilacs snatched from a vase in the dining room were strewn over her body.

Detectives were unable to account for the double tragedy except they learned that Edward was regarded as "odd." He never caused any trouble, Detective Edward Kartisek said.

The elder Svoboda said the son failed to go to his own job yesterday morning and said he was ill. He had been under the care of a physician until a few weeks

$87,000 ESTATE TAKEN TO COURT

Daughter Seeks to Set Aside Will of Mother, Leaving $80,000 to Institutions.

With an $87,000 estate at stake, Mrs. Mary Kirkendall Erndt, Mansfield, today had filed an action in common pleas court to set aside the will of her mother, the late Mrs. Clara Casey of Mansfield.

Bequests totaling approximately $80,000 were made to three Catholic institutions, including St Peters church in Mansfield, under provisions of the will which was filed for probate last Dec. 26 in Richland county.

Mrs. Erndt, who received only $100 from the estate, contends in her petition that the paper filed in probate court is not the will of her mother. Atty. Van C. Cook filed the action for Mrs. Erndt.

The original paper, drawn up in 1932, left $1 000 to Mrs Erndt, but a codicil added two years later reduced the bequest to $100.

A residence on Linden road and approximately $9,500 in stocks and bonds were left to St. Peters church in Mansfield with the provision that the residence be used as a Catholic hospital and the funds to help build the hospital.

Residue of the estate, estimated at more than $60,000, was divided equally between the Parmadale Orphans' home at Cleveland and the Catholic Orphans'

Richland, Huron Board Settles Scrap Over Road

Richland and Huron county commissioners got together yesterday at Norwalk and settled a road maintenance problem that has been troubling them for a long time.

Each county agreed to accept and maintain half of the North County Line road east of Plymouth, with Richland county maintaining the western six miles of the road and Huron county taking the eastern six miles.

C. L. Mitchell, chairman of the Richland board of commissioners, said there has been a question of maintenance of the road for several years. It follows the Richland-Huron boundary line, with parts of the road in both counties.

Mitchell said the Richland county half of the road will be graded and widened this year, while trustees in Greenwich township, Huron county, agreed to help repair the eastern half of the road from the Greenwich East Town Line road to the Olivesburg road.

AUTO MISHAPS RESUME CLIMB

Four More Accidents Bring Nine-Day Total to 44; 'Bad Driving' Hit.

Mansfield's accident record for the month jumped to 44 today as four additional collisions were reported to police. Police Chief Meade K. Bates yesterday blamed carelessness on the parts of drivers for the 40 accidents occuring in the city in the first eight days of May.

The police chief pointed out that only 89 accidents had occurred in April and said that "bad driving habits" were to be blamed. Bates also cited the need for additional policemen to cut traffic violations.

Two of the latest accidents occurred when motorists were making left turns and the other two when drivers were passing parked trucks.

Cars driven by Glenn Cover of Fredericktown and Walter C. Studer of New Washington collided when Cover was making a left turn from West Fifth street into Walnut. Walter Killinger of Lexington R. D. 1 told police that his car and another driven by Robert King, 247 Wood street, collided at Park avenue west and Mulberry street when he attempted to make a left turn.

Police also received a report from George E. Hedrick of Mansfield R. D. 1, who said that his car was hit by another at Newman and Grace streets. A. J. Dinger, 336 Wayne street, told police that he was unable to see Hendrick's car because of a truck parked in the street.

In a similar accident, cars driven by John W. Ellsworth of 336 East Fourth street and Mitchell F. Hagan of R. D. 6 were damaged. Hagan's car collided with Ellsworth's while trying to pass a Lima Tacking company truck parked on West Fourth street.

72 Italians Held at Ellis Island as Roundup Goes on

By International News Service

NEW YORK—Captured in the federal roundup of aliens in fashionable hotels, restaurants and clubs, 72 Italians illegally in this country were being held at Ellis Island today while G-men, detectives and immigration officers pressed their search for many more for whom warrants have been issued.

The roundup of the Italians, most of whom were originally employed at the Italian pavilion at the World's Fair and had been here illegally since 30 days after the exhibition closed, came on the heels of the arrest of 177 German seamen throughout the country.

MEDIATOR: Report Chiang Wants U. S. to Act as Arbiter

(By Associated Press)

TOKYO—Headed home avowedly to discuss means of settling the troublesome "China affair," Japan's ambassador to Nanking was quoted today as saying Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek was determined not to talk peace except through the United States as mediator.

The newspaper Nichi Nichi said in a dispatch from Shanghai that the ambassador, Kumatore Honda, had declared, however, "there can be no peace which will be concluded through mediation of a third nation."

Honda's return from Nanking via Shanghai to talk with Premier Prince Fumimaro Konoye and Foreign Minister Yosuke Matsuoka coincided with increasingly insistent editorials in the Japanese press that the China incident be settled quickly to further the progress of Japan's Greater East Asia program.

Although Honda indicated United States mediation in the China affair would not be acceptable to Japan some observers deemed it significant that he discussed Chungking reports of such mediation at length.

Japanese officials virtually have said their armed forces found China so large it would take a half-century to force a settlement unless one could be reached through amicable handling.

Nichi Nichi quoted the ambassador to Nanking as saying in an interview:

"According to information I have received from authoritative sources . . . Chiang Kai-Shek says that if Japan wants peace Japan must propose it to Chungking through the United States, and Chiang is strongly determined not to accept even peace overtures in a direct deal with the Japanese government."

(State department and Japanese sources at Washington declared last night that nothing was known there of any official moves to have the United States serve as a mediator between Japan and China.)

TOOTS AND CASPER

CASPER, I FEEL I OWE COL. HOOFER SOMETHING. AFTER ALL, HE TRIED HIS BEST TO LAND THAT CONTRACT FROM CLARICE PIPPIN!
HE DID A MIGHTY GOOD JOB, TOO -- IT WASN'T HIS FAULT THAT THE DEAL FELL THROUGH!
I WAS WONDERING HOW HE WOULD MAKE OUT IN YOUR JOB, CASPER!
GOSH BOSS, YOU DON'T MEAN THAT!
OF COURSE NOT, BUT I'M GOING TO SEND HIM A CHECK FOR $1000.00
COL HOOFER MUST HAVE BEEN BORN WITH A HORSESHOE IN HIS MOUTH!
JIMMY MURPHY 5-5
IMAGINE MR PLUNKER GIVING COL HOOFER $1000.00 FOR TRYING TO GET THAT PIPPIN CONTRACT! HE'S THE LUCKIEST MAN ALIVE!
I'M THE UNLUCKIEST MAN ALIVE- MR. PLUNKER GIVES ME A $1000.00 BONUS.
BUT MY WIFE HAS LEFT ME! WHAT GOOD IS MONEY NOW? I NEVER THOUGHT I'D MISS HER SO!
IF THIS MONEY HAD COME ONE DAY SOONER, SHE MIGHT HAVE STAYED!
I DON'T EVEN KNOW WHERE SHE IS! MAYBE, IF I ADVERTISED IN THE "PERSONALS" COLUMN, SHE MIGHT SEE IT!
HAVE IT READ: "SOPHIE, AM HEARTBROKEN, COME HOME AT ONCE -- P.S. - I HAVE $1000.00 AND IT'S ALL YOURS!"
JIMMY MURPHY
TOOTS, DO YOU THINK SOPHIE WILL COME HOME TO ME IF SHE SEES MY AD IN THE PAPER?
OH I'M SURE SHE WILL, COL HOOFER!
I KNOW IF I LEFT CASPER AND HE ADVERTISED THAT HE WAS HEARTBROKEN, I'D RUSH HOME TO HIM --
-- ESPECIALLY, IF I KNEW THAT HE HAD $1000.00 READY FOR SPENDING!
WELL, I LIKE THAT! SO THAT'S THE ONLY REASON YOU'D COME HOME TO ME, TOOTS?
YES, SOPHIE WAS SO DISAPPOINTED ABOUT MY LOSING THAT BIG COMMISSION ON THE PIPPIN CONTRACT THAT SHE PULLED OUT, BAG AND BAGGAGE!
CONGRATULATIONS, COL HOOFER!
IT'S REALLY NOT FUNNY! THIS LIVING-ALONE STUFF IS NOT WHAT IT'S CRACKED UP TO BE

JIMMY MURPHY
SOMEBODY'S AT THE DOOR! I HOPE IT'S SOPHIE!
DAN, DARLING, YOU REALLY WANTED ME TO COME BACK? I SAW YOUR AD IN THE PAPER!
I COULDN'T LIVE WITHOUT YOU, SOPHIE
IT'S SO GOOD TO BE HOME AGAIN AND TO FEEL THAT YOU REALLY WANT ME! I'VE BEEN SO FOOLISH!
THAT'S ALL OVER WITH NOW! AND I FEEL BETTER, TOO, TO KNOW THAT YOU COULDN'T STAY AWAY FROM ME!
JIMMY MURPHY
OH, BY THE WAY, YOU'RE NOT FORGETTING THE $1000.00 THAT YOU SAID WAS ALL MINE!
SOPHIE SAW MY AD AND CAME BACK! BUT I WONDER IF SHE LOVES ME FOR MYSELF?
THE AD READ THAT I WAS HEARTBROKEN FOR HER, BUT IT ALSO MENTIONED THE $1000.00 I GOT FROM MR PLUNKER!
I'M SORRY NOW THAT I MENTIONED THE MONEY! I WONDER IF SHE WOULD HAVE COME IF I WERE BROKE! I'M GOING RIGHT IN AND ASK HER!
SOPHIE, I WANT A FRANK ANSWER: WAS THE $1000.00 THE ONLY REASON YOU CAME BACK TO ME?
WHY, OF COURSE NOT, DEAR...
I WOULD HAVE COME HOME, EVEN IF IT WERE ONLY $500.00!

HOLLYWOOD

—By Robbin Coons

HOLLYWOOD—I'm a stranger here myself (said the Man with the Jaundiced Eyes) but I'm sort of catching on.

(For a fact, he looked it. His eyes were hidden behind a pair of dark glasses, there was slicker-um on his hair, and he wore a red-white-and-blue blazer over his green-and-purple polo shirt.)

ROBBIN COONS

Still and all—he went on—I don't see why DeMille lets this thing go by. Here I see by the papers that FDR has opened the Red Sea. Why, even I know that that's a patented DeMille trick from 'way back. Back in my part of the country we'd say FDR was poaching.

But now I'm sort of getting into the swing of things out here. I'm gonna let C. B. take care of that. I wanna do my bit for pictures. I've got an idea. Oboy, oboy, it's terrific. (Was he catching on?)

Got it when I hear about this high school picture they're making, "Henry for President." They tell me that there were 300 high school girls on the set the other day—and not a sweater in the lot. Hollywood is a wonderful place and if sweaters are "out" why that's all there is to it.

Anyway, that's how come I got this idea. It's a sort of cover-all, all-inclusive, universal costume for pictures. It's a shroud.

Think of the money we'll save. Just a shroud for everybody, with a foreword, of course, explaining what the audience can imagine it's supposed to be. Something like this: "Miss Glamm's attire in this scene is her birthday suit—please use your kindest imagination."

* * *

And speaking of costumes—I saw some in a movie called "Ziegfeld Girl" the other day and I'm a-gin it. I don't like to complain, but if Flo Ziegfeld dressed his gals like that couldn't we just sort of overlook it? After all, what's pretty about a pretty gal toting around stuffed birds or wearing metal forests on her head? Tastes differ, and maybe I'm wrong, but I like to think a pretty girl is like a melody . . . and I like to recognize the tune.

Speaking of simple things, I've been looking at a few movies around here and it strikes me the simple ones are the best. I mean the kind that take a story and tell it, without throwing in any secondary plots or "comic relief" or any of the things they throw in for extra pulling power.

Seems to me "Ziegfeld Girl" over-produced itself. I felt like a fellow in a room cluttered up with too much furniture.

It was believed that the large number of German bombers shot down by British night fighters in the past week or so may have compelled the Germans to ease up for the time being.

Ship Losses Total Nearly 500,000 Tons

LONDON — (U.P.) — Ship losses during March totaled nearly 500,000 tons, the admiralty disclosed today in issuing revised ship loss totals which showed that April, which was believed to show the worst losses of the war, actually ranked third—subject to revision.

In only one month in the last 12 have losses been less than 300,000 tons, the admiralty disclosed. The low month was that of May, 1940, when 64 ships totaling 248,650 tons were lost.

Losses for April were 106 British, Allied and neutral ships totaling 488,124 tons, of which 187,054 were lost in the Mediterranean during the period when British expeditionary force was evacuating Greece.

The worst month was June, 1940, the month of the Dunkirk evacuation, when 128 ships totaling 533,902 tons were lost. Second ranked March of this year with 119 ships totaling 489,229 tons. This meant an increase of more than 180,000 tons from the figures previously given for the four weeks ended March 30.

In three more months losses averaged more than 400,000 tons —September, 1940, with 92 ships of 435,553 tons, October with 96 ships of 423,616 tons and July, 1940, with 105 ships totaling 405,853 tons.

Report Hitler Plans To Talk with Stalin

LONDON — (INS) — The London News-Chronicle said today that information from Germany suggests that Chancellor Hitler is planning to meet Josef Stalin, premier of Soviet Russia, within a few weeks.

These advices, according to the News-Chronicle, said it was believed that the German ambassador to Moscow has been instructed to put out feelers in Russian circles and try to arrange for a meeting.

Hitler, it was believed, may put forward comprehensive proposals for regulating Russo-German relations on a long-term basis. The proposals, according to the News-Chronicle's information, may envisage giving Russia a complete free hand in all Asia, including India and Japan and provide the Soviet with an outlet via the Persian gulf, and Iran, in return for a guarantee that Russia will make no effort to extend her present European frontiers.

Railway Traffic Restricted in Balkans

BUDAPEST—(U.P.)—New restrictions in railway traffic in western Hungary and Slovakia were made effective today and the Slovak frontiers were reported closed, but it was not explained whether this was to facilitate new German troop movements.

BERLIN—(U.P.)—Directors of German diplomatic activities, which always are carefully co-ordinated with the military effort, refused today to speculate on a persistent report that Turkey momentarily holds the center of the stage in German international affairs.

An authorized spokesman said Franz Von Papen, German ambassador to Turkey, still was in Berlin.

French-German discussions, which seemed to be an effort to bring about some understanding between Paris and Vichy, are continuing, it was said. No spokesman, however, would make any predictions.

Restrict Travel In Firing Zone Over Lake Erie

WASHINGTON — (U.P.) — Because of artillery fire, army engineers today restricted travel in a triangular "danger" zone on Lake Erie north of La Carne, where the Lake Erie proving ground is located, near Camp Perry in Ottawa county.

The area will be closed from 7 a. m. Mondays to 4 p. m. on Fridays excepting national holidays. Firing over the range will normally take place between 7:30 a. m. and 4 p. m. Monday to Friday, inclusive.

On days when firing is to be done a red flag will be displayed from an observation tower and at night a flashing red light will be displayed from the observation tower.

No phosphorus or other poisonous chemicals injurious to wildfowl, fish or other sea food will be discharged into the waters of the range, the engineers said.

HOUT RITES TODAY

Funeral services for Mrs. S. L. Hout, 78, of Goshen, Ind., wife of S. L. Hout, founder Mansfielder, who died at her home there Thursday afternoon, will be held in Goshen today. Burial will be at Columbia City, Ind.

Mother's Day to Be Observed In Churches Sunday

Special Sermons, Musical Programs to Be Given During Day's Observances; Societies Planning for Programs.

Virtually every church in Mansfield Sunday will hold services in observance of the universally celebrated Mother's day.

Many congregations will start the day's services with programs conducted by beginner and primary departments during the Sunday school to be followed by a church service built about some theme associated with Mother's day.

Special musical programs will feature the day's rites at most of the churches. Florence MacDonald, chorister at St. Luke's Lutheran church, has composed a hymn dedicated to mothers entitled "Filial Tribute," which will be a part of the musical program at three churches. Miss MacDonald wrote both the music and lyric.

Mansfield churches are not alone in the observance of the day for throughout the country the day will be dedicated in universal tribute to motherhood.

Young People's societies of many Mansfield congregations will build their evening devotional about the theme of Mother.

The universal observance of Mother's day is probably second only to the two great religious observances of Christmas and Eastertide.

Family Sunday Service Planned

Family Sunday will be observed Sunday at all services at the St. Paul Lutheran church in commemoration of Mother's day. Special exercises will be conducted at the opening of the Sunday school at 9 a. m. when the devotions will be in charge of Cuvier Mong, Hazel Gilbert, Charles Perkeybile and Dorothy Blackstone. In a tableau Lawrence Chamberlain will be the soloist. Keith Mong the reader and Mrs. E. G. Pankow, the mother, with four children, Richard Fenn will play a piano solo. The Mother's day committee is comprised of Mrs. Herman L. Gilbert, Miss Alice Miller and Miss Louise Seybold.

For the chief service at 10 a. m. family groups will sit together when Rev. Herman L. Gilbert, pastor, speaks on the subject, "Dads and Mothers of America, Awake." O. L. Seybold, organist will play two numbers by Kreckel, "Choral Variations," and "Recessional." The senior choir will present the anthem, "Sing Unto the Lord," by Vail. Lawrence Chamberlain will sing a Mother's day solo for the offertory. Mrs. Gordon Schwan and Marie Holzworth are to be in charge of the nursery program.

The annual mother-daughter banquet in the form of a covered dish supper and program will be an event of Tuesday at 6:30 p. m. Members of the Guild will sponsor this gathering for all women and girls of the church. The program is being prepared by the two groups headed by Mrs. Henry Fischer and Mrs. George Berg. Decorations will be arranged by Mrs. Glenn Miller's committee, while the dinner plans will be outlined by Mrs. Howard Hayward's group.

Wednesday at 7:30 p. m. the Lutheranites, intermediate group, will meet to study the topic, "Life Service," under the leadership of Keith Mong. Colored slides will be shown by Rev. Gilbert. Social plans will be made by Gretchen Edwards, Hazel Gilbert, Harold Lash and Richard Fenn.

Thursday Nighters, senior young people's group, will be entertained at a patriotic evening Thursday at 6:30 p. m., opening with a covered dish supper. Arrangements are being made by Rev. and Mrs. Gilbert, Miss Alice Miller and Julius Soka.

'Mother, Home and Nation,' Topic

Mother's day will be commemorated at St. Matthew's Lutheran church Sunday morning with appropriate services. Rev. C. F. Sheriff will preach on the subject, "Mother, Home and the Nation."

The Luther league will meet at 6:45 p. m. in the parlors of the church.

The Mary Voegele Missionary society will meet Monday evening at the home of Mrs. George McIlvaine, Forest and Dias avenues.

The Dorcas class will meet Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. William Isaman, 442 Newman street.

The Alpha class will meet at the home of Mrs. V. R. Brown 234 Rae avenue, Tuesday evening.

The Missionary society will meet Thursday at 2 p. m. Mrs. Martin Wappner is the guest speaker.

Two Services To Honor Mother

Both morning services at St. John's Evangelical church will be built about a Mother's day theme. Sunday school service at 9:15 a. m. will be conducted by Mrs. Marie Young's class. Bertha Reuss will speak at the service.

"Your Mother and My Mother," will be the subject of Rev. Paul H. Salesto at the service at 10:30 a. m. Baptismal rites will also be conducted during this service. The choir will sing "God Bless Our Mothers."

Outstanding among the weeks activities at the church will be the Brotherhood's annual class fish supper Monday at 6:30 p. m. A program of entertainment and recreation has been planned by George Keil president of the men's organization.

The Junior Young Peoples society will hold its monthly meeting Wednesday at 7:30 p. m. Anna Knapp will be in charge. The Ladies Aid will meet Thursday at 2 p. m. Mrs. Henrietta Schmidt will conduct the meeting.

Confesses Killing in Re-decoration Dispute

MILWAUKEE, Wis. — (INS) — In the denouement of a spectacular slaying, police today announced a 300-pound housewife has confessed that she killed her landlady because the latter refused either to re-decorate or reduce the rent.

The victim, Miss Carrier Seymer, a wealthy retired school teacher and prominent church worker, was beaten and strangled to death in her apartment Tuesday. The confession of the crime was obtained from Mrs. Dornblaser, 51, one of her tenants.

Determined either to get the building in which she lived redecorated or the rent reduced, Mrs. Dornblaser carried a 7-inch piece of water pipe in her handbag when she went to Miss Seymer's apartment to pay the rent Tuesday.

When she was told she could "either buy the building or move out," Mrs. Dornblaser attacked Miss Seymer, according to the confession. Miss Seymer was struck 23 times on the head and a pair of black kid gloves were crammed into her month, causing death by strangulation.

MANSFIELD, OHIO, SATURDAY, MAY 10, 1941.

Drive carefully tomorrow—speed and carelessness are responsible for most traffic accidents.

Among other things, the Community Fund campaign shows what Mansfielders can accomplish in a civic way when the influence of party politics is eliminated.

The Michigan legislature has again turned down a dog racing bill—apparently awaiting a time when somebody besides gamblers and racketeers demand such a law.

Neophytes In Labor Movement

NEARLY four-fifths of our American voters, according to a recent Gallup poll, believe strikes are largely chargeable to Communist activity. There are said to be only about 100,000 to 150,000 real Communists in the United States. It seems unlikely that so small a number, comparatively, could be responsible for all the disturbances that are credited to them.

Most strikes and labor troubles may be traced to other causes. One important cause may be found in the lack of training and consequent lack of responsibility in the general labor movement of recent years. The old, established labor unions usually have experienced and rather responsible leaders, and the rank and file themselves have acquired traditions of discipline and fair play as applicable to both sides of industrial disputes.

Naturally great numbers of workmen who have but lately gained union privileges by mere payment of dues need time to develop a sense of responsibility.

Present conditions, however, emphasize the need of hastening this development. If labor is to play its full part in coming months it must learn quickly the value of team work with both industry and government.

Little Causes of Big Fires

A WISE MAN once said, "Tell me what you eat and I will tell you what you are." He might also have said, "Tell me what you do with your cigaret stubs and I will tell you what kind of a citizen you are."

When driving your car, do you throw your stub out of the window? If so, you aren't a good citizen. Your stub may land in some leaves or rubbish by the roadside and start a fire. The place for such stubs is the ash tray in your car.

When you are smoking in the house and you leave your stub in an ashtray, do you make sure it is actually out before you leave it? Women are said to be among the worst offenders in this respect. Cigaret stubs smoulder on the edge of an ashtray and sometimes drop off. That is how many house fires begin.

When you drop your stub in any public place, do you step on it, hard? You should. The best plan is never to drop your stub on any floor at any time, but use the receptacles provided for smokers.

Good citizenship is simply intelligent consideration for your fellow men. One test of a good citizen is whether he puts cigaret stubs only in a safe receptacle, and, even then, makes sure they are completely extinguished.

Air Travel Without Fear

PILOTS who have been in airplane accidents take to the air again as soon as possible, but it is still considered news when distinguished passengers do so. Dr. and Mrs. George W. Crile finished a trip home to Cleveland from Florida by air the other day after an interruption of more than a month. The delay came on April 3 when the transport plane on which they were traveling crashed in a violent storm.

"We've traveled so much by plane," explained Mrs. Crile, "that we felt no qualms whatsoever."

It's the sensible attitude to take. If people all stopped doing things because of accidents, their activities would be unbearably restricted. They would never be able to walk up and down their own stairways or cross streets or use automobiles, boats, trains, buses or even horse-drawn vehicles and bikes.

Wise individuals take sensible precautions and those responsible for the lives of others take increasing care to protect them.

China Encourages Teachers

CHINA continues to be a most amazing land. Wherever the Japanese have taken over any area the Chinese schools have suffered. In many instances teachers and pupils have simply moved on, carrying with them what equipment they could and setting up school wherever they found space and freedom from bombs.

Recently the ministry of education in Chungking issued rules improving the conditions of work for primary teachers. In a statement sent to the international labor office at Montreal, the government authority explained that the minimum salary of a qualified primary school teacher was to be double the amount needed by a local inhabitant to feed, clothing and rent. Schools in Free China are trying to attain [illegible] tions, but it is on ground that the teachers' services are so important that special remuneration must be allowed him.

There are other grants and exemptions for certain expenses, with special provision for books needed for the education of teachers' children. The Chinese know that creating ignorance among their people is part of the Nazi method of fighting the Japanese.

Put Idle Ships To Work

THE [illegible] told Raymond Clapper [illegible] the other day, regarding aid to Britain in shipping [illegible]:

"I share the reluctance of many in congress to [illegible] convoy a single vessel if it can be avoided, which has become less doubtful. But this past [illegible] foreign shipping which is putting in our ports so [illegible] a shortage in the expectation [illegible] to understand action on the ground of order [illegible] headedness or [illegible] intention."

Almost any other country, in such a situation, would put the ships into useful service with a competition. Britain greatly needs them. The national house of representatives has voted to let British have them. The senate is expected to do likewise, but a few of an irreconcilable minority may more interpose to [illegible] good deeds. Here is a case where "time is of the essence."

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—One of those happy things you dream about and often yearn for but seldom see took place in Sardi's after the theater. A playwright was sitting with friends when they were joined by a young man who had a stranger in tow. The stranger was presented to the dramatist, who assumed the glazed, bored attitude of an over-paid waiter. He finally put forward a few limp fingers in what was to pass as a handclasp. The stranger at once clasped it and proceeded to crush it in a viciously hearty handshake, and the playwright gave an involuntary cry and almost went to his knees. The stranger did not apologize. He looked the playwright in the eye and said, "It's a pleasure." This playwright talks a lot about the glories of Communism but lives in expensive hotels and dines on costly and exotic foods.

WHEN the Lotus club honored Katharine Cornell with a dinner recently she became the fifth woman in history to be so favored. Mary Garden, Laurette Taylor, the late Amelia Earhart, and Dorothy Thompson are the only others who have gained this distinction.

This club is an old social organization partial to men distinguished in letters, science and the arts. Mark Twain was a member of the Lotus and called it "The Ace of Clubs." Great nights in the club's history have included dinners for General Grant, Admiral Peary, Paderewski, Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, Woodrow Wilson, Elihu Root, and Al Smith.

ONE wonders, now that Madison Square Garden is to be turned into a Mardi Gras festival lasting 100 days, what the fate of the venture will be. Our old friend Monty Proser, ex-hobo, ex-beachcomber, now a thriving Broadway night-club operator, will turn the vast expanse of the garden into a labyrinth of cafes, dance halls, and sideshows. He says he is going to spend $100,000 on the enterprise. You will have to take in a lot of admissions to get all that money back. In recent years large expenditures in amusement ventures have not yielded dividends. The World's Fair is eloquent testimony to that. But perhaps Monty Proser knows what he is about. He usually does.

Sees 'Poorer But Better Nation'

—By CARTER FIELD

JUST to dispose of a few war-time, post-wartime and defensive odds and ends:

Will Durant, noted philosopher and historian, speaking a few nights ago at a meeting in Washington's nearby Maryland, gave it as his opinion that America is destined to become a better nation, whether the democracies or the Axis countries win the pending conflict. We'll be stronger in either case, he said. He admitted that we'll be poorer, too. But, he added, we're too rich and comfortable. That is what has made us so soft, he remarked.

Will Durant

It was a cheering speech in a way. A lot of folk have been asserting that we'll be left in terrible shape if the Axis aggregation wins. It is glad tidings to hear that we'll be better off even so. Some people still doubt it, but it is the virtually unanimous verdict that we'll be poorer alright.

Leon Henderson, boss economist in the government's defensive setup, by implication agrees with Philosopher Durant that we'll benefit by being poorer, at least for a spell, and then a frightful slump when the emergency passes, prices subside and the boom busts.

Furthermore, the encouraging prediction is made that Leon will get his wish—our buying capacity certainly will be reduced when Treasury Secretary Morgenthau's new schedule of income taxes takes effect.

Fewer Automobiles.

There's another note of cheer (for pedestrians) in the news that auto manufacturers have promised to trim their output of civilians' motor cars by 20 per cent in order to concentrate upon production of military supplies.

Some pessimists to be sure, forecast that the remaining 80 per cent will scorch correspondingly faster than they do now. However, it should mean a bulge in the value of existing cars. That'll be a boon to today's owners—and, of course, they're a vast majority of our population.

It isn't so pleasant to learn that the cost of war, or preparation for it, is two or three times as high now as in the 1914-1918 period. Not that prices are greatly higher, but there are so many more newly-invented and greatly-improved gadgets to be provided—not little bits of gadgets, but perfectly enormous ones, like tanks and planes, as large as an old-time battleship.

Our experts, though, are doing their utmost to economize. For instance, the cases of the provision of cantonment facilities at two of Washington's neighboring army posts—Forts Belvoir and Meade.

It originally was estimated that $6,000,000 would cover the Belvoir expenditure and the other day the house of representatives' military committee was noified that, due to the army authorities' penny-pinching, the item actually is being held down to $14,000,000. Fort Meade's a more ambitious cantonment. That was scheduled to cost $8,500,000. But there, too, the clamps were exercised so rigorously that the military affairs committee's advised that $22,000,000 will cover the bill.

May Cost More.

Of course, the work isn't quite finished. The $14,000,000 and $22,000,000 budgets are only estimates, like the initial $6,000,000 and $8,500,000 guesses. When the jobs are done the totals may run a trifle higher than $14,000,000 and $22,000,000 apiece.

Yet it goes to show how tight-waddedly those army engineers are handling their appropriations.

Make Your Choice

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

ANATOLE FRANCE, the great Frenchman, said many wise and inspiring things. But no words of his ever fired me so, and none are so needed by America today as these:

"I PREFER THE FOLLY OF PASSION TO THE WISDOM OF INDIFFERENCE."

You need to have lived a great deal before you can understand what those words mean. For most of us, in our youth, however dashing we may appear, secretly prefer safety. We long to run with the pack, but it must be along the conventional trail. Seldom, seldom, will we strike out for ourselves in defense of some unique principle. Seldom will we risk ridicule, failure, or real danger.

But sooner or later the time comes when we must take a definite stand, make a public choice of what position we will take. Life presses upon us . . . the world clamors its multifold demands . . . hurls its countless challenges. Tragedy comes our way . . . opportunity beckons . . . safety and security lure us with their tempting ease. So what?

We can choose the safe and sure life, the life without risk or regret.

Or we can choose a life of passionate effort . . . revolt, enthusiasm, flaming expression.

Which will YOU choose?

In the first case, you'll probably exist in a complacent niche for all your days, thinking the same smug thoughts making the same limited gestures.

BUT YOU'LL NEVER REALLY LIVE.

In the second case you'll live—and how! For your heart will stay 18 years old forever. Always, until your last moment, you'll rejoice in the beauty of life and fight against its injustice! Always you'll greet each new challenge as an adventurer greets an unknown jungle trail. You will know all the hot, sweet pulse of human risk and hope. You will touch the most shining peaks and stumble through the darkest valleys. Yes, your heart will be broken over and over again.

You'll pay a price for it all. People will doubt you and sneer at you. They will laugh at you and condemn you. You will know times of terrible loneliness and personal doubt.

BUT YOU WILL HAVE LIVED!

"I prefer the folly of passion to the wisdom of indifference," said Anatole France.

Which do YOU prefer?

Which are you choosing in these tumultuous times?

As for me, I'm all for "the folly of passion." I do not know how long my life will last or what of sadness it may still hold. But while I have my life, I intend to spend it like a king. I intend to run all the risks there are—and invent a few new ones. I intend to make myself part of all the beauty and glory and gallant courage that comes my way. Over the future I have no control.

BUT TODAY I'M DIVING IN AND GRABBING EVERYTHING IN SIGHT!

Ohio Roads Need Attention.

Ohio can scarcely be proud of the general condition of her state and federal highways. Persons who do a lot of automobile driving know that the fifth wealthiest state in the Union is much further down the list when it comes to modern roads. The sad fact is that Ohio apparently lags in highway construction.

This state stands at the cross roads of the nation. A great deal of transcontinental traffic goes through it. But to out-of-state visitors Ohio roads are a very poor advertisement for the Buckeyes. The absence of grade separations, by-passes around towns and adequate warning signs is particularly noticeable. Indeed, Ohio seems to take fiendish delight in routing every highway down the main street of even the smallest hamlet.

Other states, many of them extremely poor, have managed to keep their roads up-to-date. Ohio should wake up. — Cincinnati Times.

This Is Ohio

IN THE Ohio agricultural report for 1857, a question is answered that had been puzzling Ohioans for many years.

The question, who sowed the first wheat in Ohio, is answered by A. S. Guthrie as follows: "Mr. Isabel Thomas Guthrie, emigrated to the northwest territory in the year 1788 and arrived at the mouth of the Muskingum in July, all of three months after General Putnam had arrived with the first parties of white. My father brought a bushel of wheat with him from one of the frontier counties of Pennsylvania, which he sowed on a lot of land in Marietta which he had cleared for that purpose. It was on the second bottom or plain, in the neighborhood of where the court house now stands."

Guthrie's opinion is corroborated by Dr. Samuel P. Hildreth.

He was finally caught and now his body is being shown in the museums and at world's fairs."

Why Is Friday Thought Unlucky?

For many ancient beliefs that have survived into our enlightened day, we are lucky, out of the mysticism of the past, to be able to unearth one reason that seems logical.

Not so, however, for Friday's being considered unlucky, for which superstition we are embarrassed with the riches of much information.

It was on a Friday that Adam and Eve partook of the forbidden fruit.

It was on a Friday that Christ was crucified.

It was Friday that, before the advent of the Christian era, was consecrated by the pagans to the goddess of love; and during its ensuing four and twenty hours there were frequently practiced rites that so shocked the early Christians that they anathematized the day.

It was Friday that, during the middle ages, was set aside for public executions, causing it to become known as hangman's day.

Summary of Week's Happenings

Convoy Controversy Holds Stage, Stimson Urges Use of U. S. Navy

—By ASSOCIATED PRESS

AN AMERICAN newsman was allowed to report from London last week-end that a "well-placed American informant" there believed Britain's position "pretty grim."

This informant added that Britons were feeling an urgent need for a swing of U. S. public opinion which would permit close co-operation of American and British navies in escorting merchant ships.

On the same day diplomats in Vichy relayed reports that 26 American merchant ships, stacked to the funnels with war material for Britain's Middle-Eastern armies, had reached Suez. The diplomats said that American warships were "convoying" the merchant ships.

To this report the U. S. navy department immediately answered: "No United States ships are employed in convoy duty."

Proposals For Aid.

Though the government made this terse denial, Americans noted a sharp increase in the demands by prominent citizens and groups for American convoys and for other far-reaching measures aimed at the Axis:

1 Senator Gulfey, administration wheelhorse, led off by making the first public senatorial plea for convoys, a week ago Thursday.

2 The American Legion's executive committee approved convoys.

3 It was reported that Wendell Willkie, titular head of the Republican Party, had sent word to President Roosevelt that he would support him in any move FDR made to assure delivery of U. S. goods to Britain. Willkie told reporters that the existing sea patrol was "not adequate."

4 In a speech dedicating the birthplace of Woodrow Wilson as a national shrine last Sunday, FDR said the American people "are ever ready to fight again" for the existence of democracy in the world. He said Wilson taught that democracy could not survive in isolation.

Rep. Ham Fish later said: "The president has done more than any one other president to create fear and hysteria, but . . . he is using his influence against the interventionists in his own cabinet."

5 Scholarly President James B. Conant of Harvard university, who recently returned from an assignment for FDR in England, called upon the U. S. to "fight now" against the Axis. "Our best hope of avoiding later battle against desperate odds," he said in giving his personal views, "is to become a naval belligerent now."

6 On Tuesday lean-faced Senator Pepper, a long-time administration booster, breezed on to the senate floor and made proposals that left some colleagues gaping. He urged:

That the U. S. occupy Iceland, Portugal's Azores and Cape Verde Islands, Spain's Canary Islands, Singapore and Dakar, French West Africa, in co-operation with the British;

That the U. S. adopt convoys;

That long-range bombers, manned by American pilots enlisting voluntarily, be sent to China. ("A few bombers flown by American pilots wouldn't leave enough of Tokyo to build a bonfire.")

He acknowledged that such a program meant "losing a few lives now" but insisted it would avoid a greater loss of life later on.

Senator McCarran called his remarks "a declaration of war . . . against the entire world."

7 That same morning FDR called a meeting of what in some quarters has been called the "war cabinet." Its members were Secretaries Stimson, Hull, Morgenthau and Knox, General George C. Marshall (army chief of staff), Admiral Harold R. Stark (chief of naval operations), Major General H. H. Arnold (chief of the army air corps) and Harry Hopkins (supervisor of the lend-lease program).

What took place was not fully disclosed, but that evening Stimson came out for use of the U. S. navy—"right now"—in the Battle of the Atlantic.

He reasoned: "If we should allow the present strategic moment to pass until the power of the British navy is gone, the power of our navy would become merely a secondary power instead of the decisive and winning power in the world contest."

What are we going to do about it? he asked, and answered thus:

"While we are struggling to build up an uncompleted army and an uncompleted air force, we have at our hands a naval instrument prepared and ready for just such an emergency in our defense. . . . It is within our power, if we choose to use that instrument, to turn the tide of darkness back from the Atlantic world . . ."

Adapted from a novel of Polan Banks the story is a decidedly original treatment of a triangle situation that is fraught with interest throughout. In essence it tells of a woman, Bette Davis, who, believing her husband to be dead, adopts his child by a former alliance. The husband's return and the other woman's efforts to claim the child furnish moments filled with suspense and drama. Mary Astor is cast as the other woman

Colorful days of the gold-rush frontier as pictured in Johnny Mack Brown's western, "Boss of Bullion City," showing today only at the Majestic. Brown plays a two-fisted newspaper publisher who refuses to be dominated by a corrupt sheriff. Fuzzy Knight and Nell O'Day are in the supporting cast. Trials of a pair of ambitious theatrical producers in search of an "angel" to back their show are laughingly pictured in "Footlight Fever," the second production starring Alan Mowbray, Donald MacBride and Elisabeth Risdon.

HOROSCOPE

For Sunday, May 11.

SUNDAY'S horoscope holds auguries of many conflicting and trying circumstances, with several menacing and baffling situations to frustrate by acumen, composure and sound sense, lest there arise difficulties and temptations too hazardous to vanquish. Every phase of living may be held in the balance, with but one token of comfort in that the spiritual powers are in the ascendant and should be called upon to leaven the surging mass

Those whose birthday it is may find themselves beset by a year in which it may take sagacity, poise, and good sense as well as courage and spiritual realizations to cope with and eventually frustrate. The menace may affect all phases of living, although there are several surprising fortifications or rays of light. With the health safeguarded and a conservative and sagacious plan of action, these unpredictable situations may be averted.

A child born on this day may have many reversals and tribulations to confront in life, but since its spiritual and psychological endowments are paramount these should be cultivated and a broad and brave outlook or philisophy inculcated in youth.

For Monday, May 12.

MONDAY'S astrological forecast may be for some very important coup or crisis of a public nature or one in which group action may develop something of outstanding community benefit. Such affiliations rather than purely private enterprise are well stimulated for success, although surprising denouements might be the outgrowth of sudden inspirations. It would be well however to use complete discretion in all intimate affairs.

Those whose birthday it is may expect some measure of public success, possible with group, political or community interest of outstanding importance rather than distinctly personal objective. However under keen intuitions and subtle insight there may be many benefits and gratifications. But be circumspect in emotional or social associations.

A child born on this day should be public-spirited and humane, with keen sympathies and dependable intuitions.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GABRISON

"I AM GLAD of the opportunity to be here." I told Olga, "even though I can be with you but a moment or two."

Her eyes flashed me a message—of protest, I was sure—but she had no opportunity of speech just then, for her husband, as always suave and elaborately formal in his courtesy, answered me. His wife has modified some of his more ridiculous demands that she and her daughter be accorded the deference and meticulous ritual due to royalty. But I reflected, as I heard him speak, that his natural mannerisms would no doubt cushion Olga's transfer from a European throne to an American home.

"But, my dear Mrs. Graham," he said, bowing over my outstretched hand and kissing it, a mannerism that he never puts aside and that in him does not seem affected, but the natural action of a European gentleman, "we cannot have heard you aright. You have but just arrived! I know that you and Olga," his glance at her had all the effect of an obeisance—"must have many things to discuss. Do you mean that you can give us no time at all?"

Yields to Olga's Entreaty.

"That depends upon how long you are staying at the party," I said with a smile.

"Until any time you wish," Olga responded promptly. "But we really shall be here until very late anyway, for we do not wish to go until Olina goes, and she will stay until—what do you say in America?"

"Do you mean 'until the last dog is hung?' Mother?" Mary's gay voice said at Olga's elbow, and she gave the older woman an effectionate little touch upon the shoulder which, with Olga's warm, flashing glance at her, spoke volumes to me of the loving comradery existing between them.

"Yes, that is what I mean. Do not be shocked, my Philip," and she turned to her husband with a disarming smile which promptly unknitted her eyebrows, unconsciously narrowed at Mary's speech.

"That's Lina," Mary went on. "Look at her! The stag line is three deep. You never can drag her away from that. You'll be stuck till daylight if you wait for her."

"We shall wait, most assuredly," Olga replied, and there was an inflexible note in her melodious voice which told me that her daughter still was surrounded by a modified version of strict court chaperonage, with the ex-Queen of Transvania acting as her own lady-in-waiting, delegated to supervise the life of the young princess.

"But," she went on swiftly, and there was now a suspicion of chagrin and disapproval in her voice, "Surely Olina must know that Mrs. Graham is here. Philip, will you please summon her over here to greet her."

Madge Explains to Olga.

I put one detaining hand on Philip Veritzen's arm, and laid my other over Olga's hand.

"Oh! Please don't disturb her!" I said. "I haven't had time to tell you that I am here on a most important mission which I haven't time to explain, but in which my father is vitally concerned. I must take Mary away to my room at once to aid me in something which she can explain to you later. If you two, with Olina and Noel, can 'carry on' with the party while she is gone, I shall be most grateful."

"Oh! of course," Olga said quickly. "But shall I not be able to see you afterward, even if for only a minute?"

I gave a fleeting but barely conscious thought to the few hours of sleep I would have before I should go to Lillian in the morning, and then capitulated, motivated mistly by the conviction that she had something important which she wished to say to me.

"I should love to have you come down to my room after Mary comes back," I said.

"But she's coming back here with me," Mary said. "They're all so anxious to see you. Auntie Madge," she went on coaxingly, "and I promised them if they'd keep away from you now, you'd come back here and see them all later."

CHAPTER XV

The pale, shaking Raye quickly let him in and gave him an agitated account of what had happened.

Dr. Holbrooke made a swift examination of Hal's wound and turned to Raye with a frown.

"Mr. Bedford must be taken to the hospital immediately. This is a rather delicate position for you, Raye. Police must be notified and . . ."

"Police!" gasped Raye, clinging to the back of a chair. "I had no idea . . ."

"Yes—it's a dangerous wound and I must report it. If Mr. Bedford should die it might turn into a nasty predicament for you. However, don't worry, murderers are usually apprehended. I'm prepared to help you in the worst."

The horrified Raye [illegible] "Yes, you are. But I never thought that Hal [illegible]

But nothing any one could say or do now could quiet Raye's jangled nerves. All this talk of the police and—and murder! It couldn't be real! She and Hal and Raye Stone—she was [illegible]

Soon an ambulance [illegible] took Hal Bedford away. Raye went with the doctor to the hospital and waited anxiously until he removed the bullet from Hal's back and made him as comfortable as possible.

But Hal's life hung by a thread and Dr. Holbrooke and the hospital nurses were too noncommittal about the case to be especially reassuring. The suspense was nerve-wracking. Raye wondered how long she could endure it.

She accompanied the plainly worried doctor to a police station where he quickly related what had happened, and Raye told her story. She was sharply interrogated by stern-eyed men. It was a fearful ordeal and she was distraught, she scarcely knew what or how she answered them.

Dr. Holbrooke finally persuaded the officers that Raye need not be detained longer at the station and drove her home. However, detectives followed closely in another car and made minute examination of the hall where Hal had fallen, as well as everything in Raye's small apartment.

The considerate doctor remained with her throughout the ordeal, [illegible] well into daylight, [illegible] for the sound moral [illegible]

* * *

[illegible] still [illegible] and she was [illegible] in her heart [illegible] an important [illegible] and she spent [illegible] of the morning on [illegible] Ruthie [illegible] and Ruthie [illegible]

[illegible] at once, Raye [illegible] quickly, "Hal [illegible] needs you."

"Hal? [illegible] Raye? What are you hearing from me? Where [illegible]?"

Perhaps wifely instinct told her that Raye was not giving her all [illegible]

"It's—you mustn't worry, Ruthie. Hal's—been shot."

"[illegible] no—that can't be," she said frantically. After a moment, she recovered. "Who—who did it?"

"We don't know. Get hold of yourself, dear. Hal's alive—he'll pull through. Only come back as soon as you can. Dr. Holbrooke's in charge—Hal's in St. Luke's hospital. Everything's being done for him."

"I'll get the first plane east. Oh, Raye—why did I ever leave him?" sobbed the violently agitated Ruthie.

* * *

It was pitiful and it wrung Raye's heart for more than one reason. A little shiver of guilt ran through her. Would this all have happened if she hadn't been planning to marry Hal herself? Was some woman desperately jealous of Hal? If so, who was it?

What exactly had been Hal's interest in Lydia? Why hadn't he mentioned Ruthie's trip to Reno? He he never fully intended to marry Raye Stone—without her fortune?

Oh, the whole thing was a hideous mess! Whatever had made her think her world revolved around the weak, conceited Hal? Why hadn't she realized what he was long ago?

Real concern over something else now ran through Raye's mind. What would Ruthie say when she discovered where Hal had been shot? That miserable revelation would come out soon enough. No use telling Ruthie now, filling her head with a lot of suspicion that would fret her all the way home. Poor Ruthie! In all probability, this tragedy would be about as difficult a situation for her as for anyone else.

Naturally though, Ruthie would put the wrong construction upon the whole thing, and Raye dreaded it. If only Ruthie could be generous enough to hold blameless a woman who only recently had told her that she, Hal's wife, didn't understand her own husband! But probably this would be humanly impossible.

The cruel suspense that clutched Raye during the next few hours was nearly unbearable. She could not eat or sleep. She wondered how long her pride would let her hold up her head, even though she was entirely innocent.

The police found Lydia's note in Hal's pocket and questioned the girl as a matter of course. It looked dark for Lydia for a few hours, until her aunt, Mrs. Hodden, declared that Lydia was at home and asleep when the shooting occurred. Raye was inclined to believe this, also, as Hal must have taken Lydia home before coming to her apartment.

Raye, standing in her kitchenette, was trying to drink hot coffee that evening when the telephone rang.

* * *

She jumped so violently that the cup and saucer slipped from her hands and shattered in tiny pieces on the linoleum-covered floor. A few minutes before she had snatched her evening newspaper, slid under her door as usual, and read the prominently displayed account of the shooting of Hal Bedford outside her apartment door. She knew that gossip must be rife among her friends. She surmised one of them was calling her now.

She forced her shaking legs to carry her into the living room. She wound her green silk robe tightly around her shivering body and sank into a chair beside the telephone stand.

"Hello," she said faintly into the mouthpiece.

"Miss Stone—Raye?"

She sighed with relief. It was Bill Anderson the man anyone could trust. She'd never been more pleased to hear from any man, she thought, clutching desperately at some fine inner quality in him which she greatly needed at the moment.

"Yes—this is Raye," she responded quickly.

"I'm in a rush—so sorry. I have to go back home to Syracuse. Will you forgive me for postponing our picnic until I return?"

"Why—er-yes, of course."

But her heart sank. Bill Anderson, the one man she thought she could rely upon—he was not remaining her friend. He was failing her. He was losing no time in breaking a date with a girl so badly besmirched by scandal!

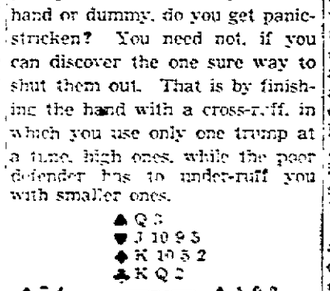
"The Authority on Authorities"

BEATING LONGER TRUMPS

If you find the trumps bunched against you so badly that one defender has a longer string than you possess in either your own hand or dummy, do you get panic-stricken? You need not, if you can discover the one sure way to shut them out. That is by finishing the hand with a cross-ruff, in which you use only one trump at a time, high ones, while the poor defender has to under-ruff you with smaller ones.



(Dealer South Both sides vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	2 ♦	Pass
3 ♠	Pass	3 NT	Pass
4 ♥	Pass	5 ♥

When West correctly led a heart against this bidding the 2 and East discarded a club, South knew what he was up against. But he also knew there was one way to foil the holder of five trumps when you hold only four in each hand. He was a keen and thorough student of the game, one of Pittsburgh's most enthusiastic. So he went to work.

He took the opener with the heart S and let a spade to the Q and A. East also cashed his diamond A and returned the club A, which the declarer ruffed with the Q. The spade K was scored, a diamond led to the K, the club K and Q laid down, for discards of a spade and the diamond Q, then a diamond was ruffed by the heart K, too high for West to over-ruff. A spade was ruffed then by the heart 9, a heart led to the A, a spade to the heart J, and the heart 10 accounted for the last trick.

Poor West was using trumps on all of the last four tricks, but each contained a trump higher than his own.

Your Week-End Lesson.

If your partner wins the first trick with the ace of the suit you led against a suit game contract, next lays down the ace of another suit and then either returns your own first suit or switches to the third side suit, how do you read his purpose in using that second ace before making his third lead? Can you set up a hand which gives an example of that defensive procedure?

A master of the gentle art of understatement is Mister Mehock of the Mansfield Tyger trackmen.

Says Harry in a note appended to yesterday's report on the track meet which the Tygers won at Sandusky:

"Rex—The meet was run off under poor conditions. As a matter of fact during a cloudburst."

Poor conditions he says. We've been howling over that one for two days now. And now it's your turn.

Bill Snypp, Lima News sports editor, writes regarding the Panda club which will meet the Mansfield Braves in the Ohio State league opener at the Fairground Wednesday night:

"Our squad is definitely not so hot. We need pitchers, an infielder, an outfielder, and maybe more."

* * *

Well now Bill, we're hoping, just for the once, that you're needing all those things. You didn't need any of 'em last year when those Pandas were prancing away out there in front.

And what ball club wouldn't need all those things you mention? Step right up and take a bow with Mehock for today's understatement championship.

Bill says Bob Snoddy will probably get the hurling call for the opener "if he's under contract by that time."

Snoddy isn't signed yet, although he's been working out with the Pandas.

So tip your hat to our man Snoddy,
If he signs he'll get the noddy.

Hoosiers Hammer Buckeye Hurlers

BLOOMINGTON, Ind.—(UP)—The Ohio State baseball club attempts today to draw back to a .500 percentage in the Big Ten race with a second game against the Indiana Hoosiers who walloped the Bucks, 9 to 2, yesterday. The loss was the fourth against three wins for Ohio State in the conference and Indiana chalked up its sixth win against three defeats.

The Hoosiers took advantage of wildness by Pitcher Jim Sexton of Ohio to tally all their runs in the first and fifth innings.

NEWARK WINS TRACK CROWN NINTH TIME

NEW CONCORD, O.—(AP)—Newark high school's track team has the "wining habit."

* * *

For the ninth straight year Newark runners captured first honors in the annual Central Ohio league track meet at Muskingum college.

* * *

Aided by Craig, who set a new league record of 142 feet, 11 inches in the discus throw, Newark rolled up 87½ points to defeat the other five contestants.

Marietta was second with 74½ points and Chillicothe third with 28½. Next came Lancaster, Dover and Cambridge.

Tribe Starts Streak

But It's a Losing One, And Fans Aren't Happy.

By JUDSON BAILEY
(Associated Press Sports Writer.)

ONE of the strangest mysteries in sports is what causes a team or a player to go into a losing streak the moment a winning streak is snapped.

* * *

It happens often just as it now is happening to the Cleveland Indians. They rolled along invincible for 11 games, the longest victory string this season in the major leagues; now they've lost four in a row.

* * *

Hitters go into these inexplicable slumps frequently. Joe DiMaggio started this season at a .500 clip, but while he was in the west recently he went to bat 21 times in six games and got only one hit, dropping below .300 for the first time in his career with the New York Yankees.

Cleveland's present skid started Tuesday against the Washington Senators when Ken Keltner let a grounder go through him for two runs. Then the Tribe lost two to the Yanks.

In the first one Hal Trosky smashed a tremendous fly with the bases loaded in the ninth, but DiMaggio caught it.

In the second contest Relief Pitcher Johnny Murphy speared Ray Mack's liner with the bases loaded. It was so sharp that for an instant he didn't know he had the ball.

When a team is losing, those breaks pile up just like the good ones do for a winning club.

Yesterday the Indians built up a four-run lead in the second inning for Bob Feller, the best pitcher in baseball, and yet he was knocked out of the box two innings later as the St. Louis Browns triumphed, 9-6. It was the first time since 1938 that the Browns had whipped him.

Manager Fred Haney juggled the Brownies' lineup before the game, benching some of his non-hitting hitters, and the move paid well. St. Louis filled the bases in the third on two singles and a walk and Roy Cullenbine tripled to clear them.

In the next inning the lower end of the batting order teed off a four-run drive that swept Feller off the mound. Vernon Kennedy, who once was a Cleveland Nemesis and pitched a no-hitter against the Tribe in 1935, singled in the tying run, following a walk and a single. Harlond Clift doubled for two more runs and Chet Laabs singled for one. Later Rip Radcliffe hit a homer and a triple for two more tallies.

The loss reduced Cleveland's advantage to two games over the Yanks, against whom they will open their first eastern invasion next week.

Rain postponed the three other games scheduled yesterday.

We Can Use a Little Probe Say Fans After Fight

By LAWTON CARVER

NEW YORK —(INS)— If expert opinion at the ringside and the boos of the fans mean anything, an investigation into boxing in New York state should be launched today to clean up last night's fight resulting in a decision for Billy Soose, of Farrell, Pa., over Ken Overlin, of Washington, for the New York commission's world middleweight title.

* * *

Veteran boxing observers left Madison Square Garden holding their nostrils against the stink of what perhaps was the worst decision handed down in that arena in a decade.

* * *

Thus today Soose is the middleweight champion insofar as the local board is concerned, but hardly according to the views of a majority of the onlookers, except Referee Arthur Donovan and the judges. The decision was unanimous, which made the thing all the more incredible.

If ever one fighter was given a boxing lesson by another it was Soose last night. According to my score sheet Overlin won 11 of the 15 rounds and held one even to retain his 160-pound title. Some of the ringsiders gave Overlin as many as 13 rounds.

The crowd booed in protest of the decision to such extent that the principals for a bout following the main event could not be introduced.

* * *

I walked from the dressing room to the ringside with Chris Dundee, Overlin's manager, to ask Gen. John J. Phelan, chairman of the boxing commission, what he planned to do about it and his crisp reply was:

"Come down to the boxing commission meeting Tuesday."

* * *

That might mean everything or nothing.

Shortly thereafter Promoter Mike Jacobs said:

"It looks like a good return match, and he immediately started plans for bringing Overlin and Soose together again.

Just how one-sided the fight was might be gleaned from the fact that Overlin, the champion, entered the ring as an 8½ to 5 underdog but at the end of 14 rounds was a 15 to 1 shot with the gamblers, according to reports that trickled back to the ringside.

Still Referee Arthur Donovan gave Overlin only seven rounds and Soose eight and in this count concurred with one of the judges identically. The other called it nine Soose, five Overlin and one even.

* * *

On my score sheet it was 11 Overlin, three Soose and one even and I was more liberal at that than some observers.

* * *

It wasn't much of a fight to look at, but it was one in which a veteran played all kinds of tricks on a green youngster with the result that Soose spent the most futile evening of his pugilistic life. There were times when he actually looked silly trying to land a punch.

Overlin butted him in the fourth round and in the ninth Soose had Overlin groggy. Those were the highlights. There was no bloodshed, no knockdowns and no excitement until the decision was announced.

Reds to Start Hurling Aces

Let-Down of Hitters Hampers McKechnie.

CINCINNATI—(U.P.)—Derringer, Vander Meer, Walters—that is the pitching fare for the Chicago Cubs for the next three days and likewise the magic mound formula by which Deacon Bill McKechnie hopes to pull his faltering Cincinnati Reds out of their early season doldrums.

* * *

Paul Derringer faces the Bruins today, comeback Vandy tomorrow and shutout Bucky Walters Monday in the initial three games of a 12-game stand at Crosley field for the Redlegs.

* * *

Larry French was expected to oppose Derringer on the mound with Claude Passeau and Bill Lee down for Chicago starting assignments the following two days.

There also is an unknown "X" quantity in McKechnie's success formula—whether the meek Cincinnati batsmen will come to life and give their hurlers more than a run or two on which to operate.

As of today, the champs have only one regular—Eddie Joost at .319—batting more than .300 and no less than four Reds who have been at the plate 50 times or more are hitting less than .200. They are Lonnie Frey (.188); Bill Werber (.185); Ernie Lombardi (.151); and Jimmy Gleeson, (.143).

MEET RECORD

OXFORD, O.—(AP)—A newcomer at the hurdles, Harold Fisher of North Bend set a new meet record in the 120-yard high hurdle event in yesterday's preliminaries of the seventh annual Miami university high school track and field carnival.

Fisher's time of 15.5 seconds beat the previous record of 15.6 set by John Saunders of Glendale.

Finals in the meet will be held today. Nearly 700 boys are competing.

Eight Start In Preakness

Smart Money Rides on Whirlaway Today.

By HARVEY RIVKIN

BALTIMORE—(INS)—The elite of turfdom converged on Pimlico today to witness the fifty-first running of the historic Preakness, the racing classic second only in prestige and color to the Kentucky derby.

* * *

Eight horses, the nation's outstanding three-year-olds, were scheduled to go to the barrier at about 4:45 p. m. (EST) to compete for the winner's purse of nearly $70,000.

* * *

Among the vanguard of the turf-enthusiastic throng were millionaire horse owners, distinguished men and women of all walks of life who follow the "ponies" and glamorous figures from Hollywood.

A number of congressmen and senators from nearby Washington, foreign attaches and legation officials were also here for the big race, casting aside the weary cares of the world just long enough to watch such outstanding performers as Whirlaway, winner of last week's Kentucky derby; Our Boots and Porter's Cap compete once again.

There was some doubt as to whether Our Boots, Royce Martin's Peakness hopeful, would run today. Final decision will not be until early this afternoon.

Most smart money was being wagered on Whirlaway to repeat his smashing victory in the derby. Fair weather forecast for the race, partly cloudy to clear skies and cool temperature would favor the derby winner. However, the Calumet Farms standard bearer isn't going to find the track so fast; and turns are much sharper at Pimlico than at Churchill Downs.

Ben Jones, trainer of Whirlaway, was well satisfied with the big, rangy speedster, and opined that his charge will duplicate his derby triumph, when he set a new Churchill Downs track record.

Whirlaway appears one of the biggest standouts ever to go postward for the Peakness mile and three-sixteenths course. He will go to the post even money choice of slightless less.

Maryland Jocky club officials prepared to handle a record crowd of over 40,000 turf enthusiasts, who will see the curtain rung down on the spring racing season in Maryland.

The complete list of entries in the Peakness besides Whirlaway, who will have the No. 1 rail position includes: Ocean Blue, No. 2; Porter's Cap, No. 3; Curious Coin, No. 4; King Cole, No. 5; Kansas, No. 6. Dispose, No 7; Our Boots, No. 8.

SPORTS GOSSIP

By EDDIE BRIETZ

NEW YORK — (The Special News Service)—Beefs: Lou Nova now claims the reason he's getting the old run-around is because he refuses to sign a three-year contract with the Mike Jacobs stock company. . . . And Wes Ferrell says the Braves aired him because of Casey Stengel's hostile feeling. . . . At least two of the Chicago newspapers are blasting the Cubs for trading Billy Herman. Well, the club hit the cellar the same day the deal was made so maybe Jimmy Wilson figured he'd be no worse off without Billy.

Colonels Fall From Loop Lead

Four teams swing into action today to see what they can do about the muddled first division situation in the American association baseball race

* * *

Fourth-place Toledo squares off against Kansas City, tied with Minneapolis for the top spot, while the Millers entertain Louisville, erstwhile pacesetter.

* * *

Louisville fell from the league crest yesterday by losing a pair of games to St. Paul. Art Herring yielded the Colonels only five hits in taking the opener, 5 to 1.

Clay Smith scattered eight hits in the seven-inning aftermath, but had a comparatively easy time winning, 6 to 4.

The double loss and Minneapolis' 11 to 6 decision over Indianapolis enabled the Millers and Blues to move a half game ahead of the Colonels.

Cold weather postponed the Columbus-Kansas City and Toledo-Milwaukee games.

Introducing the Braves

HAROLD ROBISON, Erie, Pa. . . . a right-handed pitcher.

Most of the candidates battling for berths on the roster of Mansfield's Ohio State league representative at the Fairground these days never visited the city until they reported. . . but that's not true in Harold Robison's case. An Erie, Pa., boy, Harold remembers Mansfield well . . . it was three years ago that he made his first appearance in Mansfield as an athlete. "But," as Harold says, "let's not talk about it." . . . He was a member of the Erie Academy track team that competed in the Mansfield Relays that year . . . a tosser of the shot. Robison failed to qualify in his event. "It was a great meet, though," he explained. . . . While at Erie Academy, Robison starred in track, baseball and basketball.

CLOWSON, Alex., of Elyria . . . manager of Braves . . . made home in Sandusky last winter . . . admits to 27 years-of-age . . . two inches short of six feet . . . attended grade and high school in Elyria, where he starred in football, basketball and baseball . . . graduated from Ohio State, where he captained the 1935 Buck diamond squad . . . joined Zanesville in Mid-Atlantic league after close of college season in '35 . . . played with Tommy Henrich, Al Milnar, Jeff Heath and others . . . led the Penn State league in hitting in '36 and .394 average . . . sold to Gloversville of American-Canadian league next year . . . and never hit under .300 in four years in that circuit . . . versatile . . . can play any position . . . including pitch . . . throws right-handed . . . and bats from the other side of the plate . . . and, girls, he's not married.

FOES IN SENATE ALTER STRATEGY

Plan to Avoid Showdown on Convoy Issue When Ship Requisition Comes Up.

learned, are advising him not to raise the issue at all. They advanced two arguments. One, the resolution is negative, and, if defeated, would suggest that the senate had given tacit approval to convoys; second, a prohibition by resolution is poor strategy because, they contend convoys are not permitted under the constitution.

Several senate figures reiterated their belief that Mr. Roosevelt would not undertake convoys without asking congressional authority.

Chairman Walter F. George (D., Ga.) of the senate foreign relations committee said he thought national unity would be served if Mr. Roosevelt would. He thought that convoys without congressional authorization would be of "doubtful validity."

Sen. Burton K. Wheeler (D., Mont.), leader of the isolationist bloc, said he believed Mr. Roosevelt is forbidden by the constitution from ordering convoys into combat areas.

Wheeler said he did not believe the president would "take a chance on going contrary to the overwhelming sentiment in this country."

Many of the modern methods of warfare were invented by nature many years ago. The caterpillar moth was the forerunner of today's parachute troops. When their homeland has been swept clear of food, the caterpillars spin long silker threads, on which they dangle from trees. When the thread becomes sufficiently long to serve as a buoy, it breaks away from its anchorage, and is wafted by air far away from its moorings. So great is the buoyancy afforded by the slender cord aided by hollow air pockets in the hair of the caterpillars, that they have been picked up at sea 50 or 60 miles from land.

EARLY DEALINGS LACK DIRECTION ON MART TODAY

Minus. Plus Signs About Equal As Stocks Are Sluggish; Lumber Improves.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK — The stock market lacked purpose and direction in today's early dealings and minus and plus signs were about evenly divided.

At a sluggish opening improvement was registered for Kennecott, United Aircraft, American Telephone, Chrysler and Pennsylvania. Off a shade were U. S. Steel, Standard Oil of N.J., and N. Y. Central.

Holders of rail stocks were comforted by the summary of "Railway Age" which placed new freight cars ordered during the year ended last month at 100,876, the largest aggregate for any calendar year since 1929.

A recovery sign was discerned in the figures of the National Lumber Manufacturers association indicating lumber production, shipments and new orders for the week ended May 3 were well ahead of the preceding week and the corresponding period a year ago.
